Behavioral research suggests that the most effective people are those who understand themselves, both their strengths and weaknesses, so they can develop strategies to meet the demands of their environment.

A person's behavior is a necessary and integral part of who they are. In other words, much of our behavior comes from "nature" (inherent), and much comes from "nurture" (our upbringing). It is the universal language of "how we act," or our observable human behavior.

In this report we are measuring four dimensions of normal behavior. They are:

- how you respond to problems and challenges.
- how you influence others to your point of view.
- how you respond to the pace of the environment.
- how you respond to rules and procedures set by others.

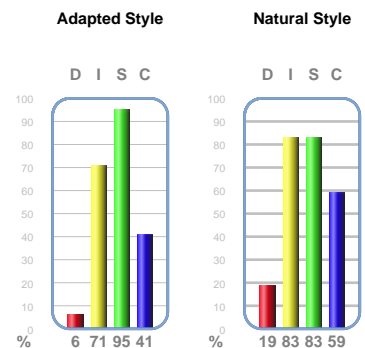

This report analyzes behavioral style; that is, a person's manner of doing things. Is the report 100% true? Yes, no and maybe. We are only measuring behavior. We only report statements from areas of behavior in which tendencies are shown. To improve accuracy, feel free to make notes or edit the report regarding any statement from the report that may or may not apply, but only after checking with friends or colleagues to see if they agree.

Most people are aware of and sensitive to the ways with which they prefer to be communicated. Many people find this section to be extremely accurate and important for enhanced interpersonal communication. This page provides other people with a list of things to DO when communicating with Chris. Read each statement and identify the 3 or 4 statements which are most important to her. We recommend highlighting the most important "DO's" and provide a listing to those who communicate with Chris most frequently.

Do:

- Take time to be sure that she is in agreement and understands what you said.
- Talk about her, her goals and the opinions she finds stimulating.
- Leave time for relating, socializing.
- Give her time to ask questions.
- Provide solid, tangible, practical evidence.
- Provide ideas for implementing action.
- Be prepared.
- Support your communications with correct facts and data.
- Give her time to verify reliability of your comments--be accurate and realistic.
- Read the body language for approval or disapproval.
- Provide testimonials from people she sees as important.
- Provide a warm and friendly environment.
- Take your time and be persistent.

This section of the report is a list of things NOT to do while communicating with Chris. Review each statement with Chris and identify those methods of communication that result in frustration or reduced performance. By sharing this information, both parties can negotiate a communication system that is mutually agreeable.

Don't:

- Take credit for her ideas.
- Drive on to facts, figures, alternatives or abstractions.
- Talk to her when you're extremely angry.
- Make promises you cannot deliver.
- Don't be haphazard.
- Talk down to her.
- Push too hard, or be unrealistic with deadlines.
- Leave decisions hanging in the air.
- Be curt, cold or tight-lipped.
- Kid around too much, or "stick to the agenda" too much.
- Use testimonies from unreliable sources.
- Rush her in the decision-making process.

Since people are different, the needs they have, and that must be met, are also different. The information in this section will help you identify types of people and provide you with the strategies to meet their needs.

"Improving Your Communication Flexibility"

When interacting with a person who has the following characteristics:

- Fast-paced speech
- Comes on strong
- Impatient
- Direct
- Tries to control the situation

Factors that will improve communication with this Style:

- Be clear, specific, brief, and to the point and value their time.
- Stick to business - let them decide if they want to talk socially.
- Come prepared with all requirements, objectives, support material in well-organized "package."
- Present the facts logically and efficiently.
- Provide facts and figures about probability of success of ideas, or effectiveness of options.
- Take issue with facts, not the person, if you disagree.
- Support the results, not the person, if you agree.
- Support and maintain an environment where they can be efficient.
- Read the body language - look for impatience or disapproval.

Factors that will create tension or dissatisfaction with this Style:

- Talking about things that are not relevant to the issue
- Appearing disorganized

- Give them time to be thorough, when appropriate.

Factors that will create tension or dissatisfaction with this Style:

- Being overly optimistic
- Inability to prove what you say

Adapted Style

Natural Style

Use this page for ideas on how to control the interaction between yourself and a customer when the following situations arise. When a customer is upset, you must first gain control of the situation - then read the customer's style and apply the appropriate strategy.

PERSON

STRATEGY

Skeptical, Suspicious

Agree on minor points and expand. Be conservative in assertions.

Nervous, irritable, high strung

Use a quiet, tactful, soothing manner.

Pessimistic, grouchy, complaining

Listen patiently, ask questions to find out their real concerns.

Egotistical, opinionated, high hat

Flatter their ego. Concentrate on getting results.

Argumentative, blustering

Create response by challenging in a sincere manner.

Silent, secretive

Be more personal than usual to draw them out.

The Success Insights® Wheel is a powerful tool popularized in Europe. In addition to the text you have received about your behavioral style, the Wheel adds a visual representation that allows you to:

- View your natural behavioral style (circle).
- View your adapted behavioral style (star).
- Note the degree you are adapting your behavior.
- If you filled out the Work Environment Analysis, view the relationship of your behavior to your job.

Notice on the next page that your Natural style (circle) and your Adapted style (star) are plotted on the Wheel. If they are plotted in different boxes, then you are adapting your behavior. The further the two plotting points are from each other, the more you are adapting your behavior.

If you are part of a group or team who also took the behavioral assessment, it would be advantageous to get together, using each person's Wheel, and make a master Wheel that contains each person's Natural and Adapted style. This allows you to quickly see where conflict can occur. You will also be able to identify where communication, understanding and appreciation can be increased.
